New Life Nature's Renewal

Thank you

*for joining me on nature's journey.
I am grateful for the opportunity to share nature's gifts with you,
and hope you will find joy in them
as I do.*

Nature is filled with uncertainty, with complexity, and with chaos. Nature has underlying rhythm and order too, just beneath what we most often see on the surface. Despite the complex exterior, nature's simple rules are being followed, over and over, eon after eon, regardless of the conditions, and independent of any attempt to change them. It is in this way that nature sustains her purpose -- The Process Of Creative Expression.

If you think about it, none of nature's creations are preserved forever. Trees die; canyons deepen; rivers come and go; animals live their lives, and then pass the responsibility to their young. What is preserved however is the process – the ability to create, to recreate, to improve, to innovate. These are the processes that power evolution, and leave us with the extraordinary variety and majestic beauty that resonates in all of us.

There's a rhythm to this process of creative expression. Of all life's rhythms, one that captivates my heart, and my vision, is the miracle of new life – birth, mothers and their young. For it is here that nature shows us first-hand, with grace and beauty found perhaps nowhere else, the recurring patterns and rhythm in all her creations.

The natural essence of each of earth's creatures is embedded in its DNA – a world of life experience and evolution passed down to each generation, offering most of what these youngsters need in order to survive, and to take their place in the cycle of life. Through their mother's nurture, they learn the rest.

New life is fragile, yet it's also tenacious, reminding us of the delicate balance that makes nature so resilient. The emergence of new life touches our senses. Perhaps it's the cuddly appearance; maybe it's the visible expression of nurture and love; it could be the quiet lessons – of adaptability, of acceptance, of the need for skill, of the value of play; or perhaps it's the way nature reconnects us with wildness – that innate but lost part of ourselves we long to regain, that part of us that most wants to be alive in this world and to enjoy our own process of creative expression. In this way, my connection with nature has touched my soul. The joy of experiencing mothers and their young has rekindled my own reverence for life and offered me a deeper relationship – both with myself and with my world. When I'm in nature, I feel the quiet sense of peace and meaning that comes from knowing I am a part of something truly remarkable.

Over the years, I've been blessed by Mother Nature with one remarkable moment after another as I have shared time with brown bear cubs in the early months of their lives, returning each year to observe their mothers continued nurture that is vital to their sustaining as adults. Now, I am experiencing mothers of those cubs with yet another generation of cubs, observing the same process of love, caring and nurture -- passed along.

Rhythms; cycles; patterns in nature. They sustain nature, and now they sustain me, driving my vision of what's worth preserving in our fragile world.

*Thank you,
Dee Ann*

Behind the elephant is a vast, open savanna with scattered trees and shrubs. In the background, a large, steep hill or mountain is covered in dense, lush green forest. The sky is not visible.

About the Photographer...

Windows of Nature by Dee Ann offers the photographic community, art collectors, nature and animal lovers alike exciting and exotic venues to explore. Photo-artist Dee Ann Pederson is a native of Houston, Texas. Her awareness and respect for nature began early, during family vacations to visit our national parks and natural wonders; and at the age of seventeen, Dee Ann began to cultivate her love for photography working as a photographer's assistant. Her abundant energy and wanderlust have led her around the world in search of nature's splendor. She's as at home in the frigid Arctic as she is in the heat of the Serengeti; nature offers her gifts independent of climate or location.

Conservation & Community

In nature, life finds sustainable balance. Often, however, human activity threatens this balance, and in turn, the sustainability of ecosystems. Only through the effort of communities of support can we restore balance where it's been compromised. Through sales of her photographs, art cards and calendars, Dee Ann provides financial support to the following organizations / communities, each committed to protecting nature's delicate balance:

Conservation International
East Africa Wild Life Society (Kenya)
The David Sheldrick Wildlife Trust (Kenya)
Jane Goodall Roots & Shoots Program
National Audubon Society

Jane Goodall Institute
National Wildlife Federation
Polar Bears International
The Cougar Fund

The Houston Zoo
The Nature Conservancy
The Sierra Club
World Wildlife Fund

She is also a member of the North American Nature Photographers Association (NANPA) and an active member of the NANPA Foundation Board.

"Although I may have a plan or a wish as I approach photographing in nature, I always find something of the unexpected. I've learned to just be present, and remain open to what nature may offer in each moment. As a nature photographer, I feel gratified to offer "windows of nature," images that enhance awareness of conservation, enrich the lives of others, and speak to the power of stewardship for a more meaningful tomorrow. To me, Mother Nature is a kaleidoscope, bringing remarkable mosaics into view, one after another, with colors, light, textures, fragrances and sounds ... a sensual treat of fauna, flora, land, sea and sky ... the tapestry of our natural world."

— DEE ANN

While my passion is clearly focused on nature's splendor, my trips to Africa have left me deeply touched by the Maasai, indigenous people of Tanzania and Kenya who have lived for hundreds of years in reverence and respect for this land. I've adopted a ritual each year of bringing gifts to these beautiful, peaceful and proud people as a token of my appreciation for sharing time and space with me for a few short days. Last year, I brought school supplies for the children, as such things are hard to come by. The smiles on their faces spoke loudly to the essence of the vivid tapestry of their culture.
